THE CHARTER

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

IN THE YEAR OF OUR LORD ONE THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED AND TWENTY-THREE

AN ACT TO INCORPORATE CERTAIN PERSONS BY THE NAME OF THE NEW HAMPSHIRE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Whereas the persons hereinafter named have associated for the laudable purpose of collecting and preserving such books and papers as may illustrate the early history of the State, and of acquiring and communicating a knowledge of the natural history, the botanical and mineralogical productions of the State, as well as for the general advancement of science and literature; and whereas the object of their association is of public utility and deserves public encouragement:

Therefore,

SECTION I. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened that Ichabod Bartlett, William Plumer, Jr., Bennett Tyler, Jeremiah Smith, Jeremiah Mason, Richard Bartlett, James Bartlett, Jacob B. Moore, Andrew Peirce, William Smith, Jr., and Nathaniel A. Haven, Jr., with their associates, and such other persons as shall from time to time be admitted members of said association according to such by-laws as the members of said association may establish, be, and they hereby are created a body politic and corporate, and shall forever hereafter continue a body politic and corporate by the name of the New Hampshire Historical Society, and for the purposes aforesaid, and with all the powers, privileges, and liabilities incident to corporations of this nature.

*SECT. 2. And be it further enacted that, in addition to the real and personal property held and used by said corporation for the purposes aforesaid, and in addition to its library and other collections, said corporation may receive by gift, grant, devise, or otherwise, and may hold, possess, and enjoy real and personal estate to an amount which produces a net annual income not to exceed fifty thousand dollars.

SECT. 3. And be it further enacted that the said corporation shall have full power and authority to determine at what place their library and cabinets shall be established, at what times and places their meetings shall be holden, and in what manner the members shall be notified of such meetings; to elect from among the members of said corporation such officers, with such powers and duties, as they shall judge expedient; and also to ordain and enact any by-laws for the government of said corporation, provided the same be not repugnant to the constitution and laws of this State.

SECT. 4. And be it further enacted that the said Ichabod Bartlett, William Smith, Jr., and Nathaniel A. Haven, Jr., or any two of them, shall have power to call the first meeting of said corporation at such time and place, and may notify the members of said association in such manner, as they may deem expedient.

*Amendment of March 19, 1913.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

In the House of Representatives June 11, 1823.

The foregoing bill, having had three several readings,
passed to be enacted.

Sent up for concurrence.

ANDREW PEIRCE, Speaker.

In Senate June 12, 1823.

This bill, having had three several readings, was enacted.

DAVID L. MORRIL, President.

Approved June 13, 1823.

LEVI WOODBURY, Governor.

THE BY-LAWS

ARTICLE I. Membership.

SECTION 1. The Society shall consist of active, corresponding, honorary, and life members.

SECT. 2. Active members shall be those who are subject to the regular annual dues of the Society. They shall be elected by a majority vote at any regular or special meeting of the Society or of the Board of Trustees. They shall, when in good standing, be entitled to vote at all meetings of the Society.

SECT. 3. Corresponding members shall be persons residing outside of New Hampshire who feel an interest in the Society and its objects, and are willing to aid it by representing it in their vicinity, and by procuring donations for its library and collections. They shall be elected by a majority vote at any regular or special meeting of the Society or of the Board of Trustees. They shall be exempt from all dues, and shall not be entitled to vote at meetings of the Society.

SECT. 4. Honorary members shall be those who are elected to that class by reason of their distinguished services in the field of learning. Their number shall be limited to twenty-five. They shall be non-residents of New Hampshire. They shall be elected by a majority vote at any regular or special meeting of the Society, provided that their names have been proposed for honorary membership at the meeting next preceding. They shall be entitled to all the privileges of active members, and shall be exempt from all dues.

SECT. 5. Life members shall be those who, being at the time active members, shall pay to the Treasurer the sum of fifty dollars in addition to any sums previously paid, and in addition to the regular annual dues for the year in which the said life membership fee may be paid. Such payment shall relieve them from all further dues during their life, and they shall retain all the privileges of active members.

SECT. 6. Members of all classes shall be entitled to the full privileges of the library and collections of the Society, subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by the Board of Trustees.

ARTICLE II. Dues.

The dues shall be three dollars for each year. No assessments or any payments other than the regular dues shall be levied upon the members. Active members, upon election and their acceptance thereof, shall pay to the Treasurer the sum of five dollars as dues for the year of their election, or any part thereof remaining before the next succeeding annual meeting, and upon such payment shall be entitled to the full privileges of membership. Any active member who fails to pay his dues for the space of two years may be suspended or deprived of membership by the Board of Trustees.

ARTICLE III. Officers.

SECTION I. The officers of the Society shall be a President, two Vice-Presidents, a Recording Secretary, a Corresponding Secretary, a Treasurer, a Necrologist, and a board of twelve Trustees. The President and two Vice-Presidents shall, ex officio, be members of the Board of Trustees.

The President, two Vice-Presidents, a Recording Secretary, Corresponding Secretary, a Treasurer, and a Necrologist shall be elected at each annual meeting for one year. Three Trustees shall be elected at each annual meeting of the Society, to serve for the term of four years in place of those whose terms expire, provided that at the annual meeting in January, 1913, three Trustees shall be elected for four years, and one Trustee each for three years, two years, and one year. The terms of Trustees elected in 1911 shall expire as follows: the two Trustees elected for one year at the annual meeting in January, 1913; the two Trustees elected for two years at the annual meeting in January, 1914; the two Trustees elected for three years at the annual meeting in January, 1915; and the two Trustees elected for four years at the annual meeting in January, 1916. All officers elected by the Society shall serve until others are elected and duly qualified.

SECT. 2. The President shall preside at the meetings of the Society and Board of Trustees when present, and perform such other duties as generally pertain to that office. In his absence, or in case of vacancy in that office, the senior Vice-President present shall preside, and perform the duties and powers of the President during such absence or vacancy. In the absence of all a President pro tempore shall be chosen. The President shall be entitled to vote at all meetings over which he shall preside.

SECT. 3. The Recording Secretary shall make and keep accurate records of the meetings of the Society, and a complete list of the names and residences of the members, notify officers and new members of their election, issue notices of all meetings of the Society, regular or special, according to the rules hereinafter prescribed, and perform such other duties as may be required of him by the Society or the Board of Trustees. He shall make a report at each annual meeting, and at other meetings when specially required. He shall be Clerk of the Board of Trustees, and keep accurate records of their proceedings.

SECT. 4. The Corresponding Secretary shall receive, and, at the next meeting after, read all communications made to the Society which are not connected with the ordinary routine of business. He shall conduct and manage all such correspondence, and shall keep copies thereof for permanent preservation.

SECT. 5. The Treasurer shall collect and receive all money due to the Society, shall have custody of its funds, and shall deposit, expend, or invest such money or funds according to the direction of the Board of Trustees. He shall pay bills approved by the Board of Trustees, and keep full and accurate books of account of receipts, deposits, investments, and expenditures, and shall submit a report of his transactions to the Society at each annual meeting, at any special meeting when required by the Society or Trustees, and to the Board of Trustees at any time when they may so request. He shall give bond to the Society at such time and in such sum as the Trustees may require.

SECT. 6. The Necrologist shall keep an accurate record of the deaths among members of the Society. He shall at each annual meeting make report of deaths of members that have occurred during the previous year, together with a brief statement of facts with reference to the lives of such deceased members.

SECT. 7. The business of the Society, and its lands, buildings, funds, collections, and other property shall be managed and controlled by the Board of Trustees, subject to the by-laws and votes of the Society.

The Board of Trustees shall appoint from their own members, or from members of the Society, a Librarian, and such other employees and committees as may be necessary or convenient properly to conduct the work of the Society and their own Board, and shall define their duties. They shall regulate the expenses of the Society, and determine the compensation of all employees; they shall, by themselves or a committee appointed by them, approve bills before payment by the Treasurer; and shall make such repairs, alterations, and purchases as they may deem expedient; they shall keep constantly informed as to the work and financial condition of the Society, and the duties and efficiency of its officers, committees, and employees.

If a vacancy shall occur in any office of the Society the Trustees shall fill it by appointment, the appointee to serve until the next annual meeting and election; they shall in the same manner fill vacancies in any committees or agencies, the appointee to serve until his successor shall be appointed. The Trustees shall audit the accounts of the Treasurer immediately before each annual meeting, and at such other times as they may consider necessary, and may call upon him for a statement of the financial condition of the Society at any time.

The Trustees shall meet in the Society building in Concord, N. H., on such day in January, April, July and October of each year as the Trustees may determine, and may hold meetings at any other time or place. The President shall call special meetings when requested in writing by not less than three Trustees, and the time and place of any such special meeting shall be as specified in the petition. Notices of meetings shall be sent by mail to each Trustee not less than three days before such meeting is to be held. At such meetings five members shall constitute a quorum, and a majority vote shall decide all questions.

ARTICLE IV. Meetings.

The annual meeting of the Society shall be held in Concord on the fourth Thursday of January. Special meetings of the Society may be held at any time or place at the call of the President. He shall call a special meeting of the Society when requested in writing by a majority of the Board of Trustees, or by not less than twenty members of the Society, and the time, place, and purpose of such special meeting shall be specified in the petition and notice thereof. Notice of any meeting of the Society shall be mailed by the Secretary to each member not less than ten days previous to the time of such meeting. At all meetings of the Society fifteen members shall constitute a quorum, and a majority vote shall decide all matters.

ARTICLE V. Amendments.

These by-laws may be amended or altered by a majority vote at any meeting of the Society, either regular or special, provided that the substance of the proposed amendment or alteration be mailed by the Secretary to each member not less than sixty days before the time of such meeting, and, in addition, that the regular notice of that meeting be sent, as herein prescribed for all meetings of the Society.

THE SOCIETY

The New Hampshire Historical Society was founded at Exeter March 13, 1823. At this meeting a preliminary organization was formed, and it was decided to apply to the Legislature for a charter, which was immediately granted and was signed by Governor Levi Woodbury on the 13th of June. Since that time the Society has been located in Concord.

It has always been fortunate in its membership. On the early records are, among others, the names of Jeremiah Mason, Levi Woodbury, Ichabod Bartlett, and Nathaniel A. Haven of Portsmouth, Oliver W. B. Peabody of Exeter, William Plumer of Epping, Joel Parker of Keene, and John Farmer and Jacob B. Moore of Concord. These men would impart character and impetus to any undertaking. All had scholarly tastes, and many of them were learned in the law. In 1823 Levi Woodbury was Governor of the State, and was afterwards Secretary of the Navy, Secretary of the Treasury, and a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States; William Plumer had been Governor; Ichabod Bartlett was then a member of Congress; Jeremiah Mason had been a United States Senator; Joel Parker was afterward Chief Justice of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, and Oliver W. B. Peabody was a poet of no small fame. Of them all none was more useful and more resourceful in forwarding the objects of the Society than John Farmer, the genial apothecary, and Jacob B. Moore, the publisher and printer. The work of these two in historical directions is well known. The first gift to the library of the Society was a record book from Mr. Moore. The first considerable gift of money was the sum of twenty dollars from Levi Woodbury.

At first it was intended to limit the membership of the Society to fifty resident and fifty honorary members, but this restriction was afterward enlarged. In the few succeeding years prior to 1840 the records show, among others, as resident members Matthew Harvey, Samuel D. Bell, Nathaniel P. Rogers, Isaac Hill, Nathaniel G. Upham, Philip Carrigain, William H. Y. Hackett, Nathan Lord, Jeremiah Smith, Ira Perley, Asa McFarland, and Nathaniel Bouton, and as honorary members Nathaniel H. Carter, Joseph E. Worcester, Lewis Cass, and George Bancroft.

Hon. Ichabod Bartlett was the first President of the Society, John Farmer Recording Secretary, and Jacob B. Moore its first Librarian.

The original constitution provided that "the objects of the Society shall be to discover, procure, and preserve whatever may relate to the natural, civil, ecclesiastical, and literary history of the United States in general, and of this State in particular." This constitution was abolished at the annual meeting of 1913, and the charter adopted in its place.

The income of the Society for the first year of its existence was one hundred and fifteen dollars, made up of nineteen membership fees and the gift from Hon. Levi Woodbury which is above mentioned.

Ten years after its beginning the Society's library was in an upper room of the south wing of the State House, and its annual meetings were then and afterward held either in the Senate Chamber or the Council Room. It was an early custom to have an annual public address of historical or biographical character delivered in the hall of the House of Representatives. These interesting addresses, many of which have been printed in the Society's publications, have since been more frequent, and the place of delivery has finally become the Society's own premises.

The income of the Society has never been large, and the expenses have been kept within suitable limits. In 1841 copies of its charter, by-laws, and list of members were furnished gratuitously by a Concord printer. A debt of one hundred dollars, created on some hopeful occasion, existed for several years, but was paid in 1859 by a gift of that sum from Hon. Samuel D. Bell. There was discussion for a long time about building a suitable fence around the monument on the Hopkinton road entrusted to the Society by Richard Bradley, which marks the locality of the fight with the Indians in 1746, but finally the fence was built about 1870 from funds provided by Mrs. Harvey Jewell, a daughter of Mr. Bradley.

In 1874 the membership of the Society included 137 active resident members; and in 1884 the library was found to contain more than 10,000 volumes. The membership is now about 700, and the library contains about 25,000 volumes, thousands of pamphlets and broadsides, and the largest collection of early New Hampshire newspapers to be found in the United States. In historical manuscripts the library is especially rich. The galleries and museum display paintings and sculptures of great beauty and value, and very fine collections of rare old china, antiquities, Indian implements, and relics of some of New Hampshire's greatest men.

The library, only, has been moved into the new building, most of the relics and curiosities remaining in the old building, which is still the property of the Society. This building is now being remodelled for use as a museum of antiquities, all three floors to be devoted to that purpose. Such an institution will undoubtedly attract many notable collections now in private possession, and will become a very interesting and instructive feature of the work of the Society.

THE BUILDING

The New Hampshire Historical Society building has been given an unusually appropriate architectural design. The building, primarily a library in character, an athenæum in fact, also expresses the dignity of a home for art, and a meeting place for lectures and for research.

First of all there is a quality of permanence without and within the structure, in the restrained beauty and dignity of the design, the materials, and the decorative treatment. The building is Greek in spirit and in detail. It is not archaic, however, neither does it express any passing style or modern fancy. It is entirely appropriate for its uses, an inspiration to those who know the building, and to those who avail themselves of the opportunities it contains.

The elements and even time itself cannot harm the work. The exterior is of granite, cut from Rattlesnake Hill in the Capital City. Daniel Chester French, in the monumental sculpture over the grand entrance, carved from the same granite, tells the story of ancient and modern research which the Society and the structure typify. The sculpture, conceived and executed in the same spirit, fulfills and crowns the beauty and dignity of the whole.

Massive bronze grilles form this entrance. The central rotunda is built of Old Convent Grey Sienna marble, a material of great beauty, quarried by monks from the only known deposit in the world of this material. The arches and vaults, even the ceiling, are of this marble. The whole rotunda design is impressive in its simplicity.

The great stairway leading to the stack room and to the exhibition hall is of Hauteville marble, adorned with railings and lamp standards of bronze. The rotunda on the second floor is constructed throughout in Cæn stone.

The entire west wing of the building is devoted to the library of the Society, and is complete in every requirement. The main reading room is large, well lighted, and of very pleasing proportions and detail. The books are in bronze stacks arranged in a series of alcoves. Over the fireplace in this room is the contributors' tablet of white marble, where in bronze letters are inscribed the names of members who have given distinguished study to historical research, and also the names of men and women who have contributed largely toward the purchase of the land and the maintenance of the institution.

In the basement are the newspaper room and the shipping room; at the left of the main entrance of the building is the Superintendent's office, and at the right, the Trustees' room.

In the east wing is the lecture room, with marble panelled platform and mahogany furniture, while above is the large, top-lighted, tile-paved exhibition room. On this floor are several apartments designed for special exhibitions and loan collections.

The lighting fixtures, designed in keeping with the character of the building, are of bronze. The furnishings are of mahogany, designed in harmony with all else, and making complete a building admirable in every detail.

On the marble wall facing the grand stairway has been placed a beautiful tablet, the gift of Benjamin A. Kimball, dedicated to Edward Tuck in commemoration of his generosity to the Society. This tablet exhibits workmanship of the finest taste and skill; its composition is of bronze, enriched with dark and antique color. The design represents an aged student recording history, having on his left the lamp of knowledge and a palm branch, and on his right an hour glass and an olive branch.

On the right, as one enters the impressive rotunda, is a bronze bust of Amos Tuck, while opposite, on the left, is a similar bust of his son, Edward, the donor of the building. Amos Tuck was a life-long citizen of New Hampshire, and a man of much distinction. He was one of the original Free Soil Democrats, leaving the party because of its policy respecting slavery, and becoming a founder of the Republican party, whose name he suggested as early as 1853. Six years in Congress, from 1847 to 1853, comprised his legislative career, but his political influence continued to the end of his life.

Edward Tuck, benefactor of this Society, was born in Exeter August 24, 1842, prepared for college at Phillips Exeter Academy, and graduated from Dartmouth College in the class of 1862.

Mr. Tuck began the study of law in his father's office at Exeter, but was obliged to discontinue it because of temporary trouble with his eyes, for which reason he went abroad in the following year. While completing medical treatment in Switzerland he received, in June, 1864, the appointment of consular clerk, and was ordered to report to Hon. John Bigelow, United States Consul in Paris, for examination for the post. He entered the consular service there, and after the promotion of Mr. Bigelow, in 1865, to be United States Minister Mr. Tuck was made Vice-Consul, and for five months was acting Consul. He resigned his position in May, 1866, and returned to the United States, having accepted a proposition from the firm of Munroe & Co. of Paris to enter the service of their New York house, John Munroe & Co., which he did on August 1, 1866. He became a partner in the firm in 1871, and retired from active business January 1, 1881.

Mr. Tuck's business necessitated frequent trips to Paris, and since his retirement he has lived in that beautiful city the greater part of the time, though still continuing his New York domicile and interests.

He married in Paris April 23, 1872, Miss Julia Stell, who has always been an active adviser and helper in the wise and liberal philanthropy of her husband.

The character of Mr. Tuck is shown in his great public benefactions at home and abroad, and no other knows of his many private gifts. To Dartmouth College he has given large sums, all directed to practical ends. He was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor in 1905 and promoted to Officier in 1912.

Two marble busts in the niches of the upper rotunda are the gifts of Mr. and Mrs. Tuck. One is a fine Franklin, which, if not actually by the hand of Caffieri, is certainly an early copy, and a work of great artistic merit. The other is a bust of William Shorter Stell, father of Mrs. Tuck. Mr. Stell was born in Philadelphia in 1800, and while a young man went to Manchester, England, where he became a prominent and successful merchant. He retired from commercial life in 1850, and died in London in 1863. An ardent and outspoken Union man during our Civil War, and in almost daily conflict with old English friends, he abated no opinion, nor left unspoken his hostility to the Confederacy. Mr. Stell was an intimate friend of John Bright, Richard Cobden, George Peabody, Charles Francis Adams, and Junius S. Morgan, and to many distinguished countrymen traveling in England he showed generous hospitality.

The building, magnificent in its simplicity, is adorned by a group of statuary occupying a prominent place over the impressive entrance. The sculptor is Daniel Chester French, a native of Exeter. The group consists of two figures, male and female, kneeling on either side of a shield bearing the seal of the Society, and surmounted by an ornamental finial, of which the chief feature is an owl as the symbol of wisdom. The aged female figure on the right represents ancient history. She holds in her right hand a skull, symbolizing the dead past, and is studying a tablet, upon which her left hand rests, the tablet representing the records of the past. The figure of a youth on the left represents modern history as the genius of discovery. His right hand rests on a globe, and he studies a scroll which lies on his knee.

The seal which appears on the shield between the two figures has in its center an open book, with a torch, representing learning and the transmission of it; above is the radiation of light, and below is the skull of an Indian, with feathered head-dress. Branches of the apple and the pine surround the skull as symbols of cultivation and wilderness, and an Indian arrow-head appears below.

In this building, which is one hundred and fifty feet in length and ninety feet in width, including the massive pavilions, constructed of ten-cut Concord granite, Greek in design and spirit, with details of the Doric order, situated on a site bounded by State, Park, Green and Center Streets, with the State House, Federal building, State Library, and the City Hall close at hand, the New Hampshire Historical Society, through the generosity of its benefactor, possesses a perfect and complete structure, equally beautiful within and without.
